GOLDSBORO

HEARD FROM

A Lady Who Lives in Goldsboro Joins in the Chorus of Praise for Cardui, The Woman's Tonic.

Goldsboro, N. C.—"A physician treated me for many distressing symptoms," writes Mrs. Etta A. Smith, "but gave me no relief.

"I suffered with neuralgia around the heart and was troubled at times with my head. I had pain in my left side, bowels, left thigh, shoulders and arms.

"After taking Cardui, I am now well and can recommend it to other suffering women."

Just such doubtful symptoms, as those from which Mrs. Smith suffered, are the ones for which it will pay you to take Cardui, the woman's tonic.

It is at such times, when there is nothing to show, for certain, the real cause of the trouble, that you need a tonic, to give the body strength to throw off the illness that evidently threatens.

Take Cardui, when you are ill, with the ailments of your sex. Take Cardui as a tonic, to prevent illness, when you feel it coming.

Your druggist keeps it.

MAKE YOUR CALL A VISIT!

We want to impress on you the feeling that exists here with reference to showing our Furniture. We know how most people hesitate going into a store and consuming a man's time when he knows he isn't ready to buy, and we know that he often feels that he is subject to criticism for exercising a privilege that should be cheerfully accorded every one. We promise, however, that your call at this store will be treated in the nature of a visit, and every attention will be accorded the man who simply wants to see what would be given to one whom we know came in with the full intention of making a purchase. We know that sooner or later your visits will materialize, and you will not only be numbered among our regular patrons, but will also be familiar with our methods of conducting business.

Don't hesitate. Come in and make yourself feel that you are a guest of the house, and we assure you that you will never leave this store with a feeling of resentment for lack of attention nor of over-persuasion.

Police Court.

In Judge Whitaker's Police Court yesterday the cases disposed of had all the aspect of a colored symposium. The casus belli all arose over the appearance of a dusky dame named Lizzie Moore, who has a reputation as a sweetest and a handy girl with the razor, which is unequalled in Maysville's six wards. Lizzie had just completed an eight months' jail term for maliciously carving up several other "coons," both male and female.

Lizzie's advent in the realms of personal liberty, threw her into the good graces of one Jim Jones, of color, and he claimed her for his own until yesterday morning, bright and early, when Bob Bynum, Pete Faulkner and Sam Jones, all colored, appeared on the scene, and in the vicinity of the big tobacco plants in the East End the battle began; that is, it came out that the three accused men caught the aforesaid Jim Jones with the Moore woman and then and there proceeded to assault and smash him up in first-class style. Jones escaped after a terrific mauling and hid in one of the tobacco houses and thus probably saved his life. After hearing the evidence Judge Whitaker soaked the assaulters as follows—

Sam Jones, $10.50, Pete Faulkner, $30.50, and Bob Bynum, $30.50. In default of the money to pay out the trio languish in Jail.

Where the Tafts Attend the Easter Service

REV. W. G. B. PIERCE
PRESIDENT
TAFT'S PASTOR

PRESIDENT TAFT'S CHURCH
IN WASHINGTON

HISTORIC, OLD ST. JOHN'S CHURCH IN WASHINGTON OF WHICH
MRS. TAFT IS A MEMBER

THE present occupants of the White House, alike to most of their predecessors, have been regular attendants at church, but, as in the case of the average citizen, special significance attaches to their participation in divine worship on Easter Sunday. As concerns the president it may be said that part of this significance is in a religious sense and part is in a spectacular sense. It is not the special music and the flowers which make for the latter so much as the disposition on the part of a large share of the public to seize the opportunity to get a glimpse at close range of the president of the United States.

As has been said the president attends church service almost every Sunday morning in the year, but there is no certainty as to his appearance, nor, on the ordinary Sabbath, does the president invariably attend the church of which he is a member. Indeed not infrequently the chief executive accepts an invitation to worship with some congregation of another denomination, if the occasion be a special one of any kind. On Easter Sunday, however, the president goes to his own church and only the most exceptional circumstances interfere with his attendance at the morning service. Knowing this, throngs gather at the church, whereas a good sized crowd is sure to follow the president all the way from the White House gates to the church.

As was the case during the Roosevelt administration, the president and his wife are adherents of different religious denominations and hold membership in different churches in Washington. President Taft comes of a Unitarian family, his father and mother both being Unitarians and his grandmother having joined the Unitarian movement with the famous Dr. Channing. William H. Taft, like his father before him, was a member of the Unitarian church in Cincinnati. After entering official life in Washington, he took a pew in the only Unitarian place of worship at the national capital—stately All Souls' church, which is located not more than half a mile from the executive mansion.

The new "President's church" is one of the most historic churches in what might be termed "The City of Famous Churches." John C. Calhoun, Daniel Webster, Bullfinch and the late Senator Hoar have been among its members and the late Edward Everett Hale frequently occupied its pulpit. President Taft will be summoned to worship on Easter morning by the far-reaching tones of a great bell, cast by the famous Paul Revere of revolutionary fame. This bell which has place in a lofty belfry, has sounded on great public occasions since 1822, tolling successively for Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley.

The pastor of All Souls', who preaches President Taft's Easter sermon, is Rev. Ulysses Grant Baker Pierce and he appears in the pulpit in a black gown such as is worn under similar circumstances by many Episcopal clergymen. Rev. Pierce is a native of Providence, R. I., and was born in the closing year of the civil war, which readily accounts for the choice of the name bestowed upon him. He was educated in New England and at Hillsdale college, Michigan, and also pursued advanced studies at Harvard. The pastor had charges in Iowa, California and Ithaca, N. Y., ere he assumed his present position in 1891, in which year also he was married. Rev. Pierce, like the distinguished member of his congregation, has traveled extensively and lectured considerably upon travel subjects.

Mrs. Taft, like Mrs. Roosevelt, worships at a different church from that attended by her husband and by odd coincidence these two successive first ladies of the land have had the same religious affiliations. The Easter mecca of these two well-known women is old St. John's Episcopal church, located just across the park from the White House and often called the "church of the presidents," from the fact that during every administration many leading foreign diplomats and high officials of the nation have regularly attended its services. A pew in the church is always set aside for the use of the president of the United States and his family and this pew is now used by Mrs. Taft in place of the pew which she formerly rented. Miss Helen Taft is also a member of this church and usually accompanies her mother to the services when in Washington at Easter, but the president's sons are wont, as were the Roosevelt boys, to go to church with their father when at home for the Easter holidays or on other like occasions.

The Cross in Art, History and Legend

AT THIS season when all the world over people of many races and tongues are meditating on the Cross of Christ; when long services are being held in memory of the greatest tragedy on Golgotha, and processions are solemnly marching to the stations of the Cross, bearing banners and crucifixes, and bowing reverently before altars and pictures commemorating the sorrowful walk to Calvary; when in the Holy Land thousands of pilgrims from every nation are treading the very "Via Dolorosa" on which he trod as he left the Holy City forever, carrying his cross to the "Accursed Hill" outside the walls; it may be of interest to consider the history and traditions of this wonderful symbol under which we live and in the name of which so much has been wrought of world-wide good to humanity, and, alas! of great harm through Christian fanaticism.

Perhaps there is no other object on earth about which there has been more controversy, more dissensions and more superstitions than about this one great object for reverence on the one side, and for derision on the other.

Ever since the crucifixion it has left a strong impress on the history of the nations and has been revered in the religion of all the sects bearing the name of Christ. It has been surrounded by traditions and mysticism and endowed with supernatural and miraculous attributes. It has been taken as the emblem of a faith under the banner of which great deeds of heroism have been done, as in olden days when pioneer messengers of the Story of the Cross filled with religious zeal entered bravely into uncivilized and barbarian lands, fearlessly ignoring great dangers.

Heralded by Christian banners the procession of civilization has spread to all parts of the world. Romans carried it to the Britons and Saxons. The worship of the sun as observed by the Incas was brought to an end through the ascendancy of Spanish bearers of the cross.

Being the keynote and the "glory" of the Christian religion this emblem soon became prized in other directions besides those ecclesiastic. With the triumph of Christianity the cross at once was recognized as a universal symbol of highest nobility and honor. It was now considered to add dignity to the crowns and scepters of emperors and princes. It became the proud-est ensign of knightly rank. The greatest warriors were proud to see the cross on the hilts of their swords as well as on the banners under which they fought. It also became a sign of merit for valor and bravery—a reward for deeds of honor, as the iron cross of Prussia established by William III. for patriotic bravery in war.

It was worn also as a protection in times of trouble. To denote the consecration of those devoted to the aid of the suffering and needy; the Red Cross was the confederation of societies in different countries for the betterment of conditions of the wounded soldiers in campaigns on land and sea. In Crusader days, beginning with Peter the Hermit, in 1094, starting out to deliver the Holy Land from the dominion of the infidel, the brave warriors were thus named because of the red cross they wore as badges on their right shoulders.

The archbishop's crozier—the ensign of his office—is the staff with a cross head, distinguishing it from the "pastoral" staff of bishops and abbots, which have a shepherd's crook.

Thus has been experienced the saying of Justin Martyr so many years ago—that "the sign of the cross was impressed upon the whole of nature. There is hardly a handicraftsman also but uses the figure of it among the implements of his industry. It forms a part of man himself." Man has been created in this form as has been beautifully illustrated by Emily Collier in the painting depicting the Holy Child's expression of his love—"So wide is my love."

In the middle ages and in Crusader days the cross was the distinctive symbol of the Christian in contradistinction to the Crescent of the Mohammedan.

The custom of marking one's signature by a cross was first adopted by Christians in the year 110 to distinguish them from the pagans, and it stood for a silent oath.

The early Christians immediately used this sign, which was connected with their religion, as a secret message to one another in their first days of persecution. Mingling with the persecutors of their faith, they could thus make themselves known to each other without calling the attention of those around them. In visiting the catacombs in Rome, where they hid from fear of their persecutors, it is intensely interesting to notice that the sign so sacred to them is carved and engraved all around the walls of their prison cells and above the tombs of their brethren.

The Central Figure of the Passion Play

SINCE December of last year the inhabitants of the little village of Oberammergau have given most of their time to earnest rehearsal of the Passion play. Once in every ten years the villagers enact the greatest drama in the world, in performance of a solemn vow made by their ancestors 300 years ago. Some poor fellow had brought the plague to the village and the villagers in fear betook themselves to their church and vowed that if the plague should pass from their midst they would devote themselves to a representation of the Passion. Only once has the tenth year passed unhonored; that was in 1870, when the Franco-Prussian war drew away the male players, but the play was only delayed till the next year.

The play begins in May and runs till the end of September. The performance commences at 8:00 a. m. and lasts till 8:00 p. m., with an interval of two hours, and the weather is not allowed to interfere in any way. It makes no difference as to the costumes getting wet, as there are two complete sets for each player.

The Passion play sets forth the life, death and resurrection of Christ. There are 17 acts and each of the acts is preceded by a tableau, illustrative of an Old Testament incident, and pointing prophetically to the events of the act. The 17 acts are divided into three parts. The first, from the entrance of Christ into Jerusalem until the hour of his being taken prisoner on the Mount of Olives; the second, from then to his condemnation by Pilate; and the third, from the condemnation until the glorious resurrection of the Lord; the whole ending with a tableau showing the ascension.

Acted, as it is, on a huge stage, with the background of the mountains, with the climax at the mysterious time of eventful, perhaps with the thunder and lightning of nature in the crucifixion scene, it is more than the art of the stage; it is the convincing expression of a great and simple faith.

There are 700 persons in the play, of whom 270 are children. The speaking parts are given out by the officials of the community and there is no rivalry or jealousy shown. There has always been a Lang in the play, and this year Anton Lang will repeat his Christus of 1900. It is the highest ambition of the Oberammergau youth. The honor of enacting the Saviour is more than anything you can offer him, and next to that the part of one of the disciples. So with the unmarried maidens, the highest aspiration is to be found worthy to be chosen for Mary, the mother of Jesus, or Mary Magdalene.

They are no skilled actors. Their art is nature's own. They are humble woodcarvers, smiths, artisans. Anton Lang is a potter, is 34 years of age, is tall and lithe, and speaks English fluently. He was chosen for the part because of the extraordinary resemblance he bears to the accepted idea of Christ as pictured by the old masters. One critic says of him: There has been no such typical and truly German embodiment of the Nazarene during the whole of the century as in Anton Lang. When he is hanging on the cross it is just as if the wonderful picture of the crucifixion by Overbeck at Stresa were before us."

Though he is the central figure of the play and is honored and almost revered by the whole community, he is in no way spoiled, and carries himself with a simplicity and humility which is characteristic. He is essentially a son of the people and this is only fitting the part he takes. He seeks to follow the example he has ever before him, and is quite untainted by the spirit of that commercialism which is creep-

JESUS TAKING LEAVE OF HIS MOTHER

The Weekly Easter

In all the church calendar, there is no more joyous day than Easter day, which commemorates the resurrection of our Lord and Saviour from the dead. And this is as it should be; for the resurrection of Christ is the most vital and fundamental fact of the life of Christ. Had he remained in the tomb, his birth would have been forgotten long ago, and Christmas greetings and joys would not exist. Had he remained under the power of death, his death on Calvary would have been considered nothing more than that of a mere man, like that of Socrates and others, who have given their lives in attempts to uplift mankind against the forces that make for evil and that destroy the good. But when he burst the bands of death asunder, he gave the crowning proof of his Deity, and added to Bethlehem and Calvary a significance and luster that will never grow dim. There is little wonder, therefore, that the Christian world has laid especial emphasis upon the day upon which the Saviour arose.

If we take Easter Sabbath as an illustration of how we should observe every Sabbath of the year, it may be most profitable to us. Easter Sabbath is a day of worship. No other day in the year attracts so many people as Easter Sabbath. People who seldom ever darken the doors of a church are present in great multitudes on the Easter day. But God should be worshiped every Sabbath day. For this especially God set the Sabbath aside. And to worship him we must rest from worldly employments and pleasures.

Easter Sabbath is a day of joy. Organs peal it forth, sublime music emphasizes it, sermons repeat the strain, and multitudes feel the joyous thrill that comes from the fact of Christ's resurrection. But every Sabbath day should be observed in joy. The Sabbath should not be looked upon as a dreary and tiresome day. Moreover, it will not be, if we will enter into the service and worship God as sincerely and heartily as we do on Easter day.—Rev. S. H. Doyle, D. D.

ing into the conduct of the village. While every scene in the play centers on Christus, the role is not long in comparison with other speaking parts. It is the spiritual tranquility of Christus which pervades the whole play and is more potent than the spoken word in stirring the audience to a full realization of the teaching of the play.

EASTER CEREMONIAL IN VENICE

TOURISTS have been rushing from all parts of Europe to Venice in the last month to get there in time for the Easter celebration.

Those who plan to go to the beautiful city of canals and venerable architecture make special efforts to reach there at the Easter tide, for the most romantic and picturesque celebration of the great spring holiday takes place in the city of the dogs.

Easter in Venice is unlike Easter in any other city in the world, and once to have experienced the day there is never to forget it.

Easter, St. Mark's and the pigeons. This is the combination that makes the spring holiday specially interesting. At all seasons of the year the famous pigeons that stuff and stuff the food down their fattened crops till they can hardly waddle are a magnet to the crowd of sightseers, but especially do they make their appeal at Easter time, for they are genuine Easter birds.

Years and years ago they held the same relation to the Easter cuisine that eggs do in the new world, but that was before the populace came to the point of regarding them as something almost sacred. Now no one would think of putting a finger on their smooth plumage.

For more generations than anybody knows the admired pigeons have fluttered from point to point on the sacred architecture of St. Mark's. They have made their homes in nooks and crannies of the basilica; they have built comfortable nests at the feet of the famous bronze horses over the portico. In fact, there is hardly a place in the whole impressive pile that has escaped their keen little eyes and been turned into account, providing it promised to afford a hospice.

Venice loves these pigeons with a devotion that would be amusing to the outside world were it not honest.

And especially does it warm up to them at Easter time, for it was then, according to the ancient tradition, that they first came to St. Mark's.

According to the ancient story, it was Palm Sunday that the great doge made a formal visit to the Piazza San Marco. With him came his entire brilliant suite of officials, including the foreign ambassadors residing in Venice.

The presence of this host of dignitaries, the blare of silver trumpets that heralded their arrival and the magnificence of the procession deeply impressed the people, so that all who could be accommodated filled up the street and buildings.

The doge was so delighted by the welcome the populace accorded that he determined to show his bounty in a manner that should be remembered, so he had a large number of pigeons, each one weighted by having a piece of paper attached to its legs, released from the gallery of St. Mark's, over the portico where the bronze horses rear their gigantic bodies.

The crowd made a rush on the pigeons, eager to get the choice meal they afforded, and the unfortunate birds, hampered by the weights on the legs, were caught in large numbers and taken home to form the feature of many a succulent repast.

But not all were caught. Some of them escaped and sought refuge high up in the dome of the church, where none could come near them.

The fact that the birds found their hospice in the very dome of the tomb of St. Mark was not without its effect on this highly superstitious populace and they at once decided this to be a token from the good saint that his sheltering mantle was spread over the birds and that none of his true worshippers would do them harm.

Thus this early number of pigeons fluttering in fright to the top of the temple became the forerunners of the multitude that flies around the church to-day. Now they are sacred from the profane hand of man and as an extra tribute it is the habit at Easter tide, the anniversary of their recognition by the saint, to give them extra food and attention.

It is for this reason that everybody who is in Venice on Easter Sunday provides an extra supply of food for the pigeons of St. Mark's. This does not mean that they lack in poverence the remainder of the year. It simply means that the coming of the holiday brings an extra supply.

And the birds enjoy it. None can say that they fall to enter into the spirit of the holiday. They gorge and stuff until it is a marvel that the air is not filled with feathers from the exploding bodies of the birds.

It is not the first ceremonial of the day, this feeding of the pigeons. Not until the great morning service in St. Mark's has been held does the church permit the holiday fun to begin.

In the morning everybody goes to St. Mark's; that is, everybody who can get in, which is quite a distinction, for residents and visitors alike all think only of this one church on the most important Christian holiday.

In fact, the whole scene is a rioting panorama of flowers. As in every other city of the civilized world where the Christian religion is supreme, efforts have been concentrated to getting flowers into the city for the great day, but under these southern skies it is not a question of forcing hothouse plants—the natural growth in the open air supplies all that could be asked, and everybody, rich and poor, buys liberally of the luscious blooms.

In no other country in the world do the blooms attain such magnificence and it is not an uncommon sight to see a gondola literally laden with violets, which can be bought so cheaply here that for the price of an ordinary bouquet in an American city an armload can be purchased.

Against the perfect blue of the Venetian spring sky St. Mark's is outlined. The whole city is going there. The wealth and aristocracy of a city that was ancient when the new world was in swaddling clothes is making its way to worship, reclining against the black cushions of the gondola and lolling in the exquisite comfort that comes from this most lulling form of transportation. The perfume of flowers is in the air, the beauty of the dark-skinned, brown-eyed and black-eyed daughters of the city of Desdemona helps the picture richly. Everything is comfortable, romantic, inspiring.

The service is a wonderful display of rich raiment, of gorgeous processional, of richest music, of most brilliant coloring.

Easter hymns peal forth in most enchanting tones and the lover of the beautiful finds every sense cajoled.

At two o'clock in the afternoon the yearly tribute of food is paid to the pigeons and in some mysterious manner they seem to know the coming of the day that sees so much of honor done to them.

But it is at night, on Easter evening, that the full beauty of the Venetian life and Venetian charm is felt. Every part of the city appears in a new guise; every palace, monument and church takes on a glory that is not to be described.

Gliding past the gondolas filled with holiday pleasure seekers, listening to the ripple of the waters under the bows of the boats, making calls on those living in the beautiful palaces fronting on the canals and reveling in the atmosphere of romance that seems to surround every detail of the life of this ancient city, is to get impressions not to be duplicated elsewhere—impressions that explain the eagerness of tourists to spend an Easter day in Venice.

EASTER

The term "Easter" is supposed to have been derived from Ostara, or Eastre, the goddess of spring, and the personification of the morning. The feast of this goddess was celebrated by the ancient Saxons in the spring of the year.

This ancient pagan festival was utilized by the early Christian fathers and by them turned into the Christian observance now known throughout Christendom as "Easter." There was a difference among the eastern and western churches as to the date of this observance, but in 325 A. D. the council of Nice declared that the Easter celebration should be held on the first Sunday following the full moon, on or after March 21. If the full moon should happen on the Sabbath, then Easter should fall on the following Sabbath.

The Christian Easter commemorates the most vital fact in Christianity. In these days it has been made an occasion for the display of flowers and millinery, but underlying all else is the basal fact that Easter commemorates the resurrection of Christianity's founder.

Christianity, as a divine revelation, stands or falls with the establishment or overthrow of this fact. If the resurrection of the prophet of Galilee was not an actual and accomplished fact, then his claims to the spiritual leadership of mankind are spurious. He based the success of his mission on the fact of his resurrection. If he did not rise from the grave, he was a blasphemer or an ignorant fanatic. If he did rise, as he predicted he would, then the seal of divine truth was upon all he taught and all he wrought.

There are many who cannot believe in the miracle of the resurrection. For them the Easter celebration is all foolishness. But multitudes believe with unfaltering faith in this triumph of the God-man over death and the grave.

To them Easter is a day of cheer, hope and joy. The basal fact of Christianity gives foundation and force to their faith and their hope. More joy bells will peal forth their notes of victory to-day, more glorious anthems and oratories will break forth from human hearts and voices, more human tongues will speak and sing the praises of humanity's Christ than at any time since the angels said to the affrighted women at the gateway of the tomb: "He is not here, he is risen, as he said; come, see the place where they laid him."

The Christian faith is too deeply rooted in the heart of humanity ever to die away and the annual Easter celebrations serve to strengthen that faith.

$8,000,000 ON C. and O.'s DOUBLE TRACK

Bids Opened Saturday For Immense Contracts on Line Between Huntington and Cincinnati

Saturday the bids for the construction work soon to be commenced along the line of the C. and O. Railroad between Huntington and Cincinnati were opened at Richmond and the contracts probably let.

The work contemplated involves the expenditure of an enormous sum of money, an appropriation of $8,000,000 having been made by the Company for this particular improvement.

The double tracking of the system will really extend from Russell, Ky., to Cincinnati, and has been made necessary in order to permit the railroad to handle the vast amount of business that has developed in this section within the past year or so. Its traffic out of Huntington has more than doubled in the past two years.

"A BANNER WEEK"

Judging from last Saturday's business, which kept us all on the jump, this will be a banner week. Our Spring Suits are so attractive and so reasonable in price that it is a small wonder that discriminate buyers come to our shop.

The styles of our $15 and up Suits are exclusively confined to us. Only in the high-price merchant tailor shops will you find the fabrics that we show in our spring line. A glance in our clothing window will quickly convince you that we state facts.

For the "Little Ones" we have provided a feast of styles, coupled with the very lowest prices commensurate with the quality.

Our Men's and Boys' Shoe Department more than fully deserves your patronage. Take a glance at our Shoe and Hat window; it will give you an idea of the elegance of our Shoe and Hat Departments.

Please try to come in as early in the week as you can possibly make it convenient. You will avoid the customary rush that we always have a day or two before Easter.

Be sure and call for your tickets on our Victrola and Records. Should the lucky recipient not want it our Mr. D. Hechinger will give $200 for the outfit. Very truly yours,

COL. ROOSEVELT AT KHARTUM

EGYPTIAN government officials made the visit of Col. Roosevelt to Khartoum quite interesting. The program for his entertainment included an encampment of the desert tribes, where all kinds of weird dancing and other forms of native amusements were shown for the entertainment of the ex-president, his wife and daughter and his party. Sir Frederick Wingate, sirdar of the Egyptian army and governor general of the Sudan, was host.

BEAST FOLLOWS MAN

Veteran Hunter Tells He Saved His Life by a Clever Ruse.

Old Trick of Jumping at Attacking Animal and Yelling Loudly Makes It Turn Coward and Flee Like Cur Into Forest.

Germania, Pa.—Notwithstanding the declaration of the state game authorities that the panther is extinct in Pennsylvania, the experience of Frederick Mahl, an old hunter, butcher and woodsman, one night recently indicates that the Kettle creek region of Potter county has in it at least one of the dreaded animals.

Mahl is 73 years of age, and when he came into Potter county as a boy of seven with his parents, panthers were so common that Mahl is regarded as an authority on the "varmints," hence his announcement that he was overtaken by a real "painter" has aroused the keenest interest.

Mahl had spent the day overseeing a hog butchering at a farmer's several miles down the Coudersport pike, and at eight o'clock that evening, when he started home, the farmer's wife fixed a generous basket of savory panhaus, spare ribs and fitch, the smell of which doubtless permeated the night air as he trudged over the frozen road.

Because of the almost unprecedented season of deep snow that has prevailed since before Christmas, all sorts of animals have been driven to hard straits for food, and wildcats, catamounts, foxes and skunks have been seen nightly along the beaten paths. But when a shriek almost as plaintive as that of a woman in distress rent the air within a rod of him Mahl felt a cold shiver trickle down his backbone.

He stopped, listened, then called loudly, lest the sound might have been made by a human being. But there was no reply, except the sound of the breaking of twigs in the bushes by the roadside, and then a dead silence.

Mahl started as fast as he could walk, and had gone a half mile or more when an awful scream, half-demoniacal, half-sad, was uttered, this time slightly behind him, but still from the thicket. This well-known trait of the panther of nagging his intended victim for miles before making the attack was fully appreciated by Mahl, and the fact that he yet had a full mile of woods to traverse before emerging at the edge of his own fields aroused no little fear of what might happen.

While he stood in the middle of the road endeavoring to catch a glimpse of the animal, the latter suddenly emerged, not a half-rod away, and stalked out into the road, where it stood.

Mahl's fighting blood was up. He put his old "stunt" to the test, jumped toward the beast as though to attack, at the same time uttering as loud a cry of alarm as he could. The trick worked.

The beast was so frightened by the sudden turn in affairs that it bounded up an embankment and Mahl heard nothing more of it.

Next day an examination of the snow was made and tracks almost as large as those of a bear were found. They were followed nearly a mile until they turned into the deep ravine and out upon the smooth ice of Kettle creek and no longer were discernible.

Mahl is certain that the "varmint" was a panther. It would take a monster catamount to have made such big tracks, and catamounts are not known to cry when following their intended prey. An effort will be made to find and kill the big beast, whatever it may be.

Worry of Rattlesnake Bill

While Confined in New Jersey County Jail Fears Reptiles Will Do Damage.

Belvidere, N. J.—"Rattlesnake Bill," the Sussex county (N. J.) exile, who is languishing in jail here, doing penance for annexing other people's chickens, fears for the safety of his native county. He is convinced that if he is not released by early spring and, further than that, allowed to frequent his old haunts in the mountains of Sussex, the rattlesnakes will again overrun the county, and the farmers will be driven away, to their loss and to the detriment of the general county welfare.

"Rattlesnake Bill" has better claim to his title than many a "colonel" who all but wears the epaulets. "Bill's" real name is William H. Van Horn, but he is better known as "Rattlesnake Bill," for he is the greatest hunter of rattlesnakes the countryside ever knew. He has done more than any other one man ever did to rid the landscape of the diamond backed denizens, and yet, as he puts it, "They haven't any use for me, just because I happened to take a few chicks that nobody wanted."

He confided his fears as to the rattlesnake situation to a friend who called on him the other day.

"You know," remarked "Bill," confidentially, "there isn't a man in the county now who knows how to fight the rattlers, and they certainly will run the farmers off the land if they don't get me back there soon."

"Bill" made good pocket money for years selling the snake hides and oils.

RECORD LANGUAGE ON PHONE

Copenhagen Company Invents Way Hello Girls Can Get Even with Exasperated Men.

Copenhagen.—Exasperated telephone subscribers who, unable to get connections as quickly as they would like, indulge in harsh language towards the girl clerks, have been cleverly brought to book by the telephone administration.

At first it was found difficult to identify the offenders, so a gramophone apparatus was installed at the central exchange. The moment a subscriber began to use unseemly language, the girl would have it recorded by the gramophone.

Some of the worst offenders were summoned to the directors' office, and when they denied their hasty remarks, they were convicted by an exact repetition in their own voice on the gramophone. Telephone manners in Copenhagen have, as a result, greatly improved.

Pastor Not of "Whoa" Brand.

Allentown, Pa.—Rev. Dr. William Q. Bennett, one of the most active members of the Philadelphia conference, announced to his Linden street Methodist congregation that he had asked for transfer.

Dr. Bennett is president of the Lehigh county Juvenile Court association and the Allentown Ministerial association. "My reason for desiring to leave Allentown is this," said Dr. Bennett. "There are too many members of my congregation who want me to sit on the tail of the wagon of progress and yell 'whoa!'"

Bear "Meat" Comes to Life

Bruin Not Dead Enough, However, to Be Analyzed for Germs with Real Impunity.

Seattle, Wash.—Dr. F. E. Smith, city meat inspector, is the hero of the latest bear story and according to the popular version of the tale the doctor has cut a new notch in the world's sprinting record. Dr. Smith met the bear, which so ably supported him in the leading role, in the heart of Seattle instead of the deep woods, as is usual in bear stories, and the meat inspector was called to pass on bruin in his official capacity when the adventure occurred.

During the summer a fine black bear was kept on exhibition at Luna Park for the edification of the gaping crowds. Some shrewd speculator, noting the approach of the bear season and observing that a steady diet of candy, peanuts and popcorn had fattened bruin to a nicety, decided it was time to spring bear meat on the market, and the victim was accordingly escorted to a slaughter house.

After Dr. Smith had pronounced the live bear a good looking specimen, one of the official killers produced a large-sized revolver and fired a shot into the beast where he thought it would do the most good. The bear rolled over in his cage and stretched himself out with paws in the air.

The cage door was then opened and the bear was dragged out by his feet to a room where it was proposed to dress him. While the meat inspector was busy examining the bear for germs, some one suggested that before he was cut up it would be a good idea to make sure the bear was dead by knocking him in the head. A husky attendant procured a mallet and brought it down with a smart rap that made the bear mad. In less time than it takes to tell he was on his feet and making direct for the meat inspector (Dr. Smith's version). At the far end of the room stood a tall step-ladder. Toward the ladder Dr. Smith started, with the bear a close second. According to the medical man's sworn statement only the intervention of a soap box over which the bear stumbled saved him from utter annihilation.

Dr. Smith states that after this he will climb the ladder first before permitting the bear killing to go forward. He shudders every time he passes the bear's hide hung up in front of a First avenue meat market.

Anti-Gossip Club.

Boone, Ia.—To show the sterner sex that they can be discreet on all subjects as well as the men 18 young women of this city have organized a society for the suppression of petty gossip. According to the constitution the reign of "Dame Rumor" is at an end in Boone, and no matter how tempting a morsel of "talk" it may be, they will close their lips tightly.

The society is known as the Anti-Gossip club, and is composed of the best-known young women of the city.

A Distinction and a Definition. "Sure, an' what the devil is a chaffin'-dish?" asked Pat. "Whist, man," answered Nora, "it's a fryin' pan that's got into society."

CONVINCING EVIDENCE.

Out in San Francisco Sherlock Holmes yawned as he read a wireless message, which conveyed to him the fact that an airship had been stolen in Pittsburg. He put on his overcoat, lighted a "two for 50" cigar, walked leisurely out of the house and moved slowly toward the "municipal air-craft landing." Just as he reached this place a majestic bird swooped down and settled almost at his feet. Sherlock Holmes glanced casually at this vessel, then, addressing its captain, he said, blandly: "When did you leave Pittsburg?"

The captain turned white. "Leave Pittsburg?" he blustered. Why, I've never been there in my life; I'm from Denver."

Sherlock Holmes placidly took a pair of steel handcuffs from his pocket and approached the captain. "My dear sir," he remarked, softly, "before making your assertion you should have been thoughtful enough to cleanse your craft of its inch-thick coating of soot."

Just a Raise.

"Now look at Mrs. Scribbler's husband," said the poet's wife, bitterly. "Last week when they were short he pawned his watch. He always has something to 'put up' on a rainy day."

"Well, my dear," laughed the jolly bard, as he edged nearer the door. "I always have something to put up on a rainy day. Don't forget your own little hubby."

"You? And what did you ever put up on a rainy day?"

"Why, my dear, an umbrella."

And then he darted down the street so fast he dropped three odes and a rondeau.

Real Magnet.

"Uncle Rufus," said the young colored man, "how wud yo' hab lakid to been body servant to Geavge Washington?"

"Go 'way, boy," responded Uncle Rufus, with a broad smile. "Go 'way I'm heah. Ef Ah had to be body servant Ah'd ruther be one foh President Taft."

"Think yod lak him best, eh?"

"Yess, boy, en' think ob dem fat possums arrivin' et de White House almos' ebry day."

Rather Discouraging.

"Yes," whispered the lovelorn girl, the big tears shining in her eyes. "I told pa you were a traveling man and showed him your card. He wrote 'K. O. T.' in one corner."

"What in the deuce is that?" asked the surprised young man. "Some secret order code?"

"No, I am afraid not. It means 'keep on traveling.'"

More Practical.

"You send me violets every morning," said the beautiful girl. "I do," responded the ardent lover, "no matter what the cost."

"Quite so. Now, why not send up a bunch of asparagus to-morrow instead? It would be just as expensive and would make a big hit with pa."

They Look Alike.

"One should never judge by outward appearances," said the moralizer. "That's right," rejoined the demoralizer. "The coat of an honest man and that of a grafter may be cut from the same cloth."

With a Diamond.

"A proposal of marriage is something to be whispered in love's low, sweet tones."

"Yet by its very nature, it is a ringing declaration."

GIRL WHO LOOKED BEHIND.

The girl who looked behind her With shy and timid glance, Such wondrous grace entwined her, She set my heart a-dance; Then, like a nymph affrighted, She vanished in the throng And left mine eyes delighted, My fancy fraught with song.

The girl who looked behind her, And fled on frightened feet, Though memory hath shrined her, I never more may meet. Another man may fether The heart that fled from me— But who could love her better, Whose love more faithful be?

The girl who looked behind her Oh, may the future bring Far fairer things and kinder Than any bard can sing: Though I may never greet her, I pray my song may find The lass who made life sweeter For him she left behind! —Samuel Minturn Peck, in Boston Transcript.

A SHORT TRAIN.

Muriel.—Her train is rather skimpy, isn't it?

Myrtilla.—Yes, I guess it's one of those limited trains that you see advertised.

Sticky.

"Stick to the farm," says Taft. "It's a good hunch, we say so, too. Stick to it like a black land farm in rainy weather sticks to you."

Eye for Business.

There was a mighty collision between the sturdy warriors of the grid-iron and teeth flew around the field like grains of corn.

"Ha! ha! ha!" laughed the little man in the grand stand. "That's the best I have seen for a long time."

The crowd was disgusted. "And you stand there and laugh when a score of men are losing their teeth?" they demanded savagely. "Are you a brute?"

The little man laughed all the louder.

"No, I'm a dentist," he said simply.

Current Gossip.

Mrs. Kretser—I've heard lots of people say your friend, that rough-looking Smith, treats his wife shamefully, and I believe they speak the truth.

Mr. Kretser—Well, I don't. If anything, I believe that Smith treats his wife too well. He has told me himself that he is up before her every morning and gets her breakfast.

Mrs. Kretser—He told you he got her breakfast, did he? Well, I guess he was right. His poor, little, peaked wife looks as if he got all her meals.

Work for the Tailor.

Wasted on the Air.

"You look sweet enough to kiss," said the impressed man.

"So many gentlemen tell me that," cooly answers the fair girl.

"Ah! That should make you happy."

"But they merely say that," she replies. "They merely tell me the facts in the case and never prove their statements."—Life.

WESTERN CANADA

What Prof. Shaw, the Well-Known Agriculturist, Says About It:

"I would sooner raise cattle in Western Canada than in the best soil of the United States. Feed better for the purpose. Your market will improve faster than your farmers will produce the supplies. Wheat can be grown up to the 60th parallel (60 miles north of the international boundary). Your vacant land will be taken at a rate beyond present conception. We have enough people in the United States alone who want homes to take up this land."

70,000 American will enter and make their home in Western Canada this year. 1909 produced another large crop of wheat, oats and barley. In addition to which the cattle exports was an immense item. WHAT'S THE USE
Sticking to a Habit When It Means Discomfort?

Old King Coffee knocks subjects out tolerably flat at times, and there is no possible doubt of what did it. A Mich. woman gives her experience:
"I used to have liver trouble nearly all of the time and took medicine which relieved me only for a little while. Then every once in a while I would be suddenly doubled up with at awful agony in my stomach. It seemed as though every time I took a breath I would die. No one could suffer any more and live.

"Finally I got down so sick with catarrh of the stomach that I could not turn or in bed, and my stomach did not digest even milk. The doctor finally told me that if I did not give up drinking coffee I would surely die, but I felt I could not give it up.

"However, Husband brought home a package of Postum and it was made strictly according to directions. It was the only thing that would stay on my stomach, and I soon got so I liked it very much.

"Gradually I began to get better, and week by week gained in strength and health. Now I am in perfect condition, and I am convinced that the whole cause of my trouble was coffee drinking, and my getting better was due to leaving off coffee and drinking Postum.

"In the end of the Sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulcher."—Matthew xxviii, 1.

Spikenard and frankincense and myrrh,
And spices savory and sweet,
They brought unto the sepulcher.
To lay them at the wounded feet.
Their precious gifts their hands between,
They came in that first Easter dawn,
And she who was called Magdalene
Before the other hastened on.

But at the door the spices slipped
From hands unprised in reverence,
And to the ground, unheeded, dripped
Spikenard, and myrrh, and frankincense.
With finger on her lips, she turned,
And in a whisper tense with awe,
With eyes that in their rapture burned
She told the glory that she saw.

The tomb glowed with holy light,
A radiant one of gentle voice,
Whose lustrous wings were jewel bright,
Whose lips made music, thus: "Rejoice!
Your hearts no more need shelter fear."
And one sat where had been his head,
Who said to them: "He is not here,
For he is risen, as he said."

Then, turning back upon their way,
They set their feet; and then the sun
Flung from its arms the Easter day.
As bright as was that shining one.
And she that was called Magdalene
Paused, for before the sepulcher
A lily, stately and serene,
New-bloomed, flung back the dawn to her.

The Easter Festival Jew and Pagan Celebrated The Advent of Spring

HE festival of Easter is as ancient as the Garden of Eden. The singing of carols and decoration of the churches with flowers herbage began to stir in the fields and forests, and the northward moving sunrises melted the ice and snow.
And the Romans adopting this goddess called her Aurora, the divinity of the dawn and spring. The Fireworshippers on the uplands of Persia, and northern tribes everywhere, made joyful at the return of the sun, while the Jews kept their Passover on the 14th of Nisan, a festival to spring.

Thus the older religions prepared the human hearts of later generations
for a faith in the resurrection of life, and Christians reasoned that if the earth sprang to blossom at the coming of the sun, the dead might arise from the grave in spring eternal with the coming of the Saviour of men.

The pagan and Jewish feasts were observed about the time of the vernal equinox which was foretold by astronomers. The Easter of the Christian church being founded on an historical event, the arguments in the councils resulted in its becoming a moveable feast in order to still controversy. The Gregorian calendar fixed it as the first Sunday after the 21st of March, and if a full moon should happen on that Sunday, Easter day must be the Sunday after. By this arrangement, Easter does not fall on the day of the Jewish Passover, and is yet influenced by the Paschal moon.

The carols of the churches were joyous. They wove nature study and theology wisely together, as in this favorite:

The world itself keeps Easter day,
And Easter larks are singing;
And Easter flowers are blooming gay,
And Easter birds are springing!
Alleluia, Alleluia,
The Lord has risen as all things tell,
Good Christians see ye rise as well,
Alleluia.

In this, as in other carols, follows
the story of the Three Marys at the tomb, and of the resurrection, given with some interest. Another favorite in the English church is this, which we know is popular in a land of many belfries:

Let the merry church bells ring, ring,
ring,
Let the merry church bells ring
Hence with tears and sighing,
Frost and cold have fled with spring,
Life hath conquered dying;
Flowers are smiling, fields are gay
Sunny is the weather,
With our rising Lord to-day,
All things rise together.

While the English church has given us most of the carols, France and Germany have a rich store of them.

Many best known to-day, such as "Let the song be begun," and "Christ hath arisen! Death is no more!" and "The strife is o'er, the battle done," are quite recent in origin. There are several very old Easter songs singing of birds, flowers and joyous sports suggesting the frolics of the spring.

From the first little band of struggling Christians led by St. Paul, the Roman church grew into a powerful political organization and sought to keep all within the fold by utilizing the pagan customs, for the end sanctified the means. Following on Christmas had come a period of dull winter and fasting, now the season was changed and the earth awakened to youth and sunlight. Many curious practices of Persians, Druids, Goths and Vandals were drawn into church-ly service.

The most solemn celebration of all is that at the Holy Sepulchre in Jerusalem, while the grandest is at Rome
when the city is filled with church dignitaries and visitors.

At Jerusalem the pilgrims ascend the Via Dolorosa. They come from every quarter of the globe chanting prayers, and taking part in the foot-washing ceremony. The throng kneels in the vast rotunda of the church, many remaining in their places from Good Friday until Saturday when the patriarch with unlighted torch enters the gloom of the sepulcher. Suddenly as if flashing from heaven the fire runs along the torch, the multitude shouts with joy and singing a hymn of candle to candle, the tapers are passed along, and cherished are carried to the fastnesses of Afghanistan, to the sources of the Nile, and far-est east and farthest west wherever the Christian pilgrims make a home.

The egg, a symbol of life is naturally associated with Easter. The butterfly emerging from the cocoon is sometimes spoken of, but only ob-scurely. The custom of coloring eggs came from the Persian gods of good and of evil. The good of good Ormuzd and the evil of evil Adriman, created eggs. These being broken together by wise men, good and evil were confused in human life. The distribution of the "pace" or "pasche" eggs was general among pagans as well as Christians. The egg rolling custom began in England where eggs marked with a name were rolled down hill in contests to so handle the egg that the shell should not be cracked.

The church permitted strange things in its efforts to arouse a proper spirit among the people, and to stir lightheartedness among the dull and heavy. The clergy told funny stories from the pulpit to excite "risus paschalis," an Easter face, a smiling countenance. In Auxlerre, and Bre-nabon, both clergy and people danced to the strains of the Easter hymn
"Victimae paschali," and a solemn game of ball was played by clergy, canons and bishops for toney cakes.

TINY BABY'S PITIFUL CASE

"Our baby when two months old was suffering with terrible eczema from head to foot, all over her body.
The baby looked just like a skinned rabbit. We were unable to put clothes on her. At first it seemed to be a few mattered pimples. They would break the skin and peel off leaving the underneath skin red as though it were scalded. Then a few more pimples would appear and spread all over the body, leaving the baby all raw without skin from head to foot. On top of her head there appeared a heavy scab a quarter of an inch thick. It was awful to see so small a baby look as she did. Imagine! The doctor was afraid to put his hands to the child. We tried several doctors' remedies but all failed.

"Then we decided to try Cuticura.
By using the Cuticura Ointment we softened the scab and it came off. Under this, where the real matter was,
by washing with the Cuticura Soap
and applying the Cuticura Ointment, a new skin soon appeared. We also gave baby four drops of the Cuticura Resolvent three times daily. After three days you could see the baby gaining a little skin which would peel off and heal underneath. Now the baby is four months old. She is a fine picture of a fat little baby and all is well. We only used one cake of Cuticura Soap, two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and one bottle of Cuticura Re-solvent. If people would know what Cuticura is there would be few suffering with eczema. Mrs. Joseph Koss-mann, 7 St. John's Place, Ridgewood Heights, N. Y., Apr. 30 and May 4, '09."

Kansas Takes 1,000 Overland Cars

Our agents in Kansas have ordered for this season 1,000 Overland automobiles.
Nebraska takes 750—Iowa 1,000—Texas
1,500. Thus has the Overland—after one year's experience—captured the farming states.

It has captured the cities, too. New York City takes 1,000 Overlands this year.
Boston takes 500—San Francisco 600—
Washington 500—Philadelphia 450.

Our agents have contracted for 20,000
Overlands—for $24,000,000 worth of Over-lands—to supply the demand for this year. That's a larger sale than any other car commands.

Yet, two years ago few had ever heard of an Overland. This sensational success is due to the creation of a remarkable car.

The Simple Car

The success of the Overland is mainly due to its amazing simplicity. A 10-year-old child can master the car in five minutes. Push a pedal forward to go ahead, and backward to reverse. Push another pedal for high speed. There is nothing else to do but steer.

Any man with the simplest instructions, can run an Overland a thousand miles and back.

There was never a car so easy to care for—so easy to keep in order.

20 Per Cent Reduction

The Overland's success is also due to its price. No other maker ever gave nearly so much for the money.

Yet we have cut our costs this year about 20 per cent through enormous increase in production.

The Overland we sell for $1,600 this year is better than the $1,250 Overland last year. It is a 25 H. P. car with a speed of 50 miles an hour.

So with the $1,250, $1,400 and $1,500 Over-lands. Each offers a fifth more than ever before for the money.

All prices include Magneto and full lamp equipment.

Ask for the Story

The Overland story is one of the greatest business stories ever told. It tells how this car—the creation of a mechanical genius—has in two years reached the topmost place in this field. And it tells all about the car. Send us this coupon

$125,000 net from 1200 acres grapes.
$15,000 from 22 acres peaches.
$3,200 from 20 acres raisins, in the San Joaquin Valley, California

A cow and an acre of alfalfa will earn $120 a year in the San Joaquin Valley.
Grapes will yield from $100 to $300 per acre; peaches and apricots, $150 to $500;
while oranges will produce from $250 to $500, and in many instances more than $1000 an acre. There are ten million arable and irrigable acres here. You still may buy unimproved land for $50 an acre.

Ten acres are enough to comfortably support a small family. Twenty acres afford a fine living, with money in the bank. Forty acres should make you rich.

You pay from one-fourth to one-third down, balance easily can be paid for out of the crops.

Almost anything can be raised in the San Joaquin country—grapes and wheat, figs and apples, delicate grapes and hardy potatoes. Products of the temperate and semi-tropic zones flourish by side.

Plenty of water for irrigation drawn from the nearby Sierra snows. It is easy for one to make a start. Land between the rows can be used, while orchard is young, for many profitable crops. The point is to make every square foot bear something.

What some farmers have done:
Frank Thomas, of Fresno, Cal., bought twenty acres of land five years ago. He had but $200 to start on. Today his place is paid for and he has an income of over $7,000 a year.

William Shrayer, R. F. D. 7, Fresno, Cal., bought his first ten acres six years ago. Now owns sixty acres all paid for, and refuses $12,000 for his place.

M. F. Tarpey, of Fresno, owns vineyard of 1,200 acres, from which he takes an annual profit of $125,000.
On the Harold estate, twenty-two acres of peaches yielded a $15,000 crop.

First Appearance of Dandruff a Forerunner of Future Baldness.

That such is the case has been conclusively proven by scientific research. FREE TO YOU—MY SISTER

Free to You and Every Sister Suffering from Woman's Ailments.

I am a woman. I know woman's sufferings. I have found the cure.

I will mail, free of any charge, my home treatment with full instructions to any sufferer from woman's ailments. I want to tell all women about this cure—yes, my reader, for yourself, your daughter, your mother, or your sister. I want to tell you how to cure yourselves at home without the help of a doctor. Men cannot understand women's sufferings. What we women know from experience, we know better than any doctor. I know that my home treatment is a safe and sure cure for Leucorrhoea or Whitish discharges, Ulceration, Displacement or Falling of the Womb, Profuse, Scanty or Painful Periods, Uterine or Ovarian Tumors or Growths; also pains in the head, back and bowels, bearing down feelings, nervousness, creeping feeling up the spine, melancholy, desire to cry, hot flashes, weariness, kidney and bladder troubles where caused by weaknesses peculiar to our sex.

I want to send you a complete ten day's treatment entirely free to prove to you that you can cure yourself at home, easily, quickly and surely. Remember, that it will cost you nothing to give the trial, or less than two cents a day. It will not interfere with your work or occupation. Just send 10c your name and address, tell me how you suffer if you wish, and I will send you the treatment for your case, entirely free, in plain wrapper, by return mail. I will also send you free of cost, my book—"WOMAN'S OWN MEDICAL ADVISER" with explanatory illustrations showing what women suffer, and how they can easily cure themselves at home. Every woman should have it. Learn to think for herself. Then when the doctor says—"You must have an operation," you can decide for yourself. Thousands of women have cured themselves with my home remedy. It cures all, old or young. To Mothers of Daughters, I will explain a simple home treatment which readily and effectually cures Leucorrhoea, Green Discharge and Painful or Irregular Menstruation in Young Ladies. Plunness and health always results from its use.

Wherever you live, I can refer you to ladies of your own locality who know and will gladly tell you that this Home Treatment really cures all women's diseases, and makes women well, strong, plump and robust.
